Devil's Advocate

Last year he decriminalised witchcraft, and now look. Our teacher will be a 'for profit' lecturer company from NSW! $666.66 a day per student!

Even Scotch College hasn't the gall to ask for $666 a day. Is "666" a coincidence, Mr. John Cain?

Is John Cain's Law Society being paid to pass laws that make us students pay this $666.66 a day? Is it legal to be paid to pass laws?

I know if I slipped money to Theophonous or Grassby it was all legal, but is this?

Teaching young lawyers how to make money isn't necessary. We learn "Billing Better for Fun & Profit" in first year law. Rob Hulls didn't see this rort coming?

Blind Freddie did.
VOULA TASIPOULIS, Blackburn.

Magic Millions

And the 'Magicians Union' Award goes to Steve Bracksie. Watch in awe as he puts $45 million of pokie tax into hospitals. No-one saw the original hospital funding disappear.

BRENDAN SANGSTON, Brighton.

How Jack Helped Me

You should run a "How Jack helped me" column. When St Johns Ambulance needed hlep, he promoted our Syringe & Help Programs.

I'm just so sickened by those reporters, bureaucrats and other left wing smarties who bitched about him in the "Spencer St Soviet". I also hope Hawke and Whitlam paid for lawyers holiday homes after Jack thrashed those two.

KAAREN WATSON, Volunteer,
St John's Ambulance Service

Tax Season

The income tax season reminds again that income tax is still complex, cumbersome and compliance costly; that genuine economic effort and enterprise are deterred while gambling winnings are exempt; that legitimate tax minimisation schemes are available to the very wealthy but not to ordinary PAYE wage earners.

The Federal Treasurer does not seem to understand that many citizens want simplification, rather than, or as much as, recent nominal tax cuts (usually offset by the GST anyway).

Income tax could be significantly reduced and simplified by a charge on community created land values (something different from the current ineptly administered land tax); simple to administer, impossible to evade, paying for community-conferred advantages.

GEOFF FORSTER, Canterbury

Debt Collectors

Debt collectors are using lawyer's letterhead to threaten money out of people. Their letter 'ethically', says Law Institute rules, asks me to pay legal costs to the impostor.

The impersonating of lawyers might be ethical too, says this ethics enforcer. Excuse me, but isn't impersonating a lawyer a crime?

Isn't obtaining money under false pretences illegal? Oh yeah I forgot. Rob Hulls' pals are lawyers.

"Attorney-out-Law"

Barry Storer, Richmond

"Brumby's Bagels"

Bagels go round and round, and have a gaping hole. So does Brumby's budget. If not for $207 BILLION of GST, Brumby' Bagel would look like a hula hoop.

No wonder my tram is always littered with dozens of discarded copies of The Age. Not surprisingly, The Age's readership is declining as yours is skyrocketing.

BETTY NG, Ripponlea.
